City council haggles over appointments policy

Mayor B.J. Dolan ran into a firewall of resistance from some other city councilman last week over his statement that he intends to make all appointments to city boards and commissions.

Dolan, in a release to the Seaside Post several weeks ago, said he was notifying other councilmen of his intentions to make the city conform to state law in commission appointments. His statement said the mayor of a general law city elected to that position by the voters and not other councilmen, must by state law make such appointments.

Councilman Oscar Lawson lauched the attack against Mayor Dolan at last Thursday's city council meeting.

"We are all equal members of the city council," Lawson protested. "The mayor is one of five members and it is not, as you indicated, contrary to state law for other members to make appointments. When there are five equal members of the council, it would be to act as a tyrant for a mayor to do this.

"One can not believe that one would be asking for a plan that would permit one to stack and pack. When is the invisible government of Seaside coming to an end?"

Lawson asked that the mayor discard his intention and leave city appointments policy as it had been in the past.

Councilman Joe Cota admonished Dolan for creating "a great discussion" but noted that any appointments by the mayor must also have ratification by the full city council. "So we do have control."

Councilman Glenn Olea agreed that "we're still in a democratic process of law."

Councilman Steve Ross said the same question "brought the city to a very difficult period in its history" once before and urged that any appointments to the council be made in a democratic manner.

Responding to the questions raised by the councilmen, Dolan said he believes the difficulty stemmed from "an inferiority-type complex we have on this council.

"I don't owe one penny of special interest to anyone," Dolan asserted. He then read the portion of state law enacted in 1970 which requires that mayors in general law cities elected directly to that position by the voters make commission appointments.

"It was a violation of the manner in which we've been making council appointments when one council member brought someone in here and already had promised them an appointment and expected to get it in the back room," Dolan said.

"We have one individual who is out of step with the rest of us."

"You are very reckless with the truth," Lawson responded. "There was no truth to the statement that I had promised anybody anything. I brought a kid down from the high school and asked whether he would be willing to serve, if appointed.

"If you want to stack the deck, Mr. Mayor, will these people resign when you leave government?"

Lawson drew a sketch in chalk on the council blackboard for a lesson in what he considered Machiavellian politics, for the benefit of other councilmen who might not be aware of "manipulation."

"This is nothing but manipulation," Lawson declared, "and a disgrace!"

"Your inference that I did something dishonest is totally wrong!" Dolan replied.

Another flareup occurred when Dolan requested City Atty. Carey Royser to make a review of all campaign finance disclosures filed by city council candidates in the recent election, under the Waxman-Dymally Act. Councilman Oscar Lawson is involved in litigation for alleged irregularities under that law.

"I object," said Councilman Jo Cota. "This is unfair to the councilman (Lawson) who is having problems there."

Royster said a thorough review, as requested by Dolan, to see whether all statements conformed to state requirements, could not be conducted without the power of subpoena obtained through filing a lawsuit.

"All I'm trying to do is to ascertain whether campaign disclosures were properly filed," Dolan said.

Dolan then criticized Lawson for Lawson's request for a list of new city employees to determine their residence, saying that at least one employee had complained to Dolan that it was an "invasion of privacy."

"Is it legal for councilmen to request a list of employees?" Councilman Ross asked City Atty. Royster.

Zoning modifications passed by council on first reading

The City Council passed on first reading last week two changes in zoning laws.

The first action taken by the council upholding a recommendation of the planning commission, amends a section of the city planning code to tighten the C-N district zoning.

As stated in the amendment, the C-N zone is intended " to provide centers for convenience shopping in the residential neighborhoods planned and controlled to...perform a vital service to the neighborhood in which it is located and become integral parts thereof."

The amendment makes administrative and executive offices using an existing structure having a total square footage of less than 2,000 sq. ft. a permitted use in the C-N zones.

Other uses would be allowed with the issuance of a use permit. These include neighborhood grocery stores, beauty and barber shops, pick-up stations for dry cleaning and laundry outlets, professional offices, administrative and executive offices of greater than 2,000 sq. ft, off-site liquor sales as accessories to neighborhood grocery stores, studios for art, music, dance, and public and quasi-public utility uses.

"The C-N district is in five areas of the community," City Planner William Burris told the council. "The planning commission would like it to be a service district to the residential district. It was never intended to be a service area like the commercial area.

"The city took the real meaning away from the C-N district when you extended strip development...Those buildings used for executive and administrative uses would be allowed. The only change is that the uses will be subject to use permits. In the C-N district, off-site liquor sales are permitted now. The recommendation is that they not be permitted."

Councilman Oscar Lawson wondered whether the exclusion of liquor stores from the C-N district would discourage new businesses from locating in Seaside.

"There was an old idea that any street with more than 10 cars per hour that was more than 60 feet wiede needed commercial zoning," Burris said. "And that's exactly what has weakened central core zoning in this city."

Councilman Steve Ross said he was concerned that the council "not unduly penalize the people who operate there."

Adeline Di Lorenzo questioned a provision in the amendment requiring that any new designations of the C-N district be at least one acre in size with a 100-foot minimum street frontage.

"Use of the land along Broadway, under these conditions, would be difficult," she said.

"It looks to me like we may be causing a hardship if we require a person who wants a liquor store to also have an accessory grocery store. I would not be comfortable with these restrictions," Lawson said.

"One of the problems we have now is diluting the established businesses," commented Councilman Joe Cota. "I think, yes, we do want to protect the ones that are here."

"The intent is not to permit further expansion of any C-N districts, unless they are one acre in size," observed Mayor B.J. Dolan.

"It's almost physically impossible to put together any one-acre parcels contiguous to existing C-N districts."

Councilman Steve Ross abstained from voting because he owns property in the C-N district, but other councilmen voted in favor of the amendment.

The other zoning amendment passed on first reading by the council permits a change in designation of a parcel at 1131 Broadway from the C-N zone to the C-1 (commercial) zone.

Burris told the council the applicant, Mary McLemore, asked for the change in order to assemble enough parcels of land to operate a restaurant business there. The property is located on the north side of Broadway, immediately to the west of the Academy of Music.

The second zoning change was passed unanimously by the council.

In other actions, the city council:

--Learned that undergrounding of utilities in the 1600 block of Highland would cost $57,000 to $60,000 and could be accomplished through a special assessment district.

--Received a proposal lease agreement whereby the city of Seaside would use property owned by the Seaside Redevelopment Agency at 1893 Mendocino St. for relocation of the parks and recreation staff.

--Adopted proclamations declaring the week of Feb. 10-16 Black History Week in Seaside and Feb. 9-15 Active 20-30 Week.

SAFETY POINTERS will be given to children in the fifth annual bicycle rodeo to be held Feb. 22 at Manzanita School, co-sponsored by the police and recreation departments. Youngsters will compete in different age categories and be treated to refreshments.

Bike Rodeo to strees rider safety

The Seaside Parks and Recreation Department, in conjunction with the Seaside Police and Community Relations Department, will hold the fifth annual Bike Rodeo starting at 9 a.m., Feb. 22 at Manzanita School.

The vent is an annual one stressing bicycle safety. There are seven competitive events for three age groups (six to eight, nine to 11, and 12 to 14 years) with first, second and third place prizes in each.

There also will be competition among individual elementary schools for a perpetual trophy to be passed on to the winner of each rodeo.

The prizes include:

--The perpetual trophy, won by the school team.

--Individual trophies for the team members.

--Trophies for the first, second and third place winners in the three age categories.

--Bicycle flags and safety certificates and licenses for each child who enters the rodeo.

--A 10-speed bicycle for the individual with the highest overall points.

The Bicycle Rodeo started appropriately this month, since the Seaside Police and Community Relations Department has designated it as bicycle safety month. Parks and recreation leaders are working with interested children on their playgrounds in basic safety rules, how to fix and adjust bicycles, and safe riding skills.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, and orange drinks will be provided free, and police and recreation workers are seeking parent participation. More information may be obtained by contacting Officer Jim Davis, Lisa Anderson, or Gary Hill of the Seaside Community Relations Department at 394-8531.

Local businesses sponsor the Bicycle Rodeo with the city, and provide refreshments and trophies. Some of this year's sponsoring businesses include Drive & Eat, Eureaka Federal Savings, Wester Porsche-Audi, and McDonald's.

Federal government gives ultimatum

The federal government has ordered Plumbers and Steamfitters Union Local 62 to meet minority hiring quotas under the "hometwon plan" or face a cutoff of federally-funded projects in Monterey County.

The Office of Federal Contract Compliance set down the directive in the issuance of Part II bid conditions affecting those construction trades working on projects involving federal funds. The bid conditions impose mandatory apprentic hiring quotas, as opposed to voluntary quotas established under Part I bid conditions.

The imposition of the order came after the Monterey County Affirmative Action Plan board of directors complained that the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union had not compiled with its agreement signed in 1970 to bring minority apprentices into the trade.

"Our decision on which crafts are to be covered by Part I and which crafts aree to be covered by Part II of the bid conditions is predicated on several basic factors which include: economic conditions, the attempt to place minority persons, the response from the craft, a demonstrated 'good faith' effort, and unique considerations of the geographical area," said a letter to the local union from the regional headquarters of OFCC.

"Effective immediately, any contractor perfoorming work on federal and-or federally-assisted construction work in the Monterey County Hometown Plan area and utilizing crafts listed as being covered by Part II must comply with the ranges and goals as set down in the bid conditions."

This means that any contractor directly performing services on such a project, as well as any other firm supplying goods or services to such a contractor, must meet minority hiring regulations in order to be eligible to work on federally-funded construction projects.

The board of directors of the affirmative action plan is composed of 21 members, representing the various segments of the Monterey County minority community, including women. The 21 members include seven union representatives, seven management representatives, and seven minority representatives.

The seven representatives of the minority community consist of three Mexican-Americans, three Blacks, and one Filipino. Its executive director is Sal Palacios, who is employed by the U.S. Department of Labor and whose office is in Salinas.

The hometown plan concept is the result of an executive order issued by former President John Kennedy, which became Public Law 88352. It specifies that any business doing business with the federal government, or performing work on any project involving federal funds, must have the same proprotion of minorities employed in that project as exists in the community in which the work is being done.

The affirmative action plan was implemented to help labor and management meet those federal standards. In the case of Monterey County, the affirmative action plan only applies to the construction trades, and those which have so far voluntarily compiled with federal standards sn-

Black History Week

A slate of activities has been planned for Black History Week at Martin Luther King Junior High School. The week will begin with a visitation by Black Professionals from the community who will share information regarding their particular profession with the students. The Seaside Community Choir will also visit the campus and perform at an assembly. To finalize the week of activities, a general assembly will take place on Friday, February 14. Students who participated in the Afro-Art Contest and Black Poetry Contest will receive their prizes at the general assembly. The student who receives the highest score on the Black History test will be presented with a U. S. Savings Bond. All prizes presented to the students are being donated by the merchants of Seaside.

Seaside eligible for flood insurance

Seaside will be eligible for Federal flood insurance effective Feb. 13. All structures used for residential, business or agriculture purposes and structures used for non-profit organizations, and structures owned by state or local governments or ugencies thereof are eligible for flood insurance coverage.

The federal rates are 25 cents per $100 assessed evaluation. This means that a $20,000 home may be insured for about $58.

Mayor B.J. Dolan, who has been working on this project for Seaside for many years, was elated over the news, and stated that the announcement was a welcome bit of information.

"This opens many doors to residents of Seaside," the mayor stated. "This means many business will now be able to have a cheaper insurance. This, coupled with the insurance rate we anticipate is going to be lessened as the result of the overlap--I'm talking about the mutual fire coverage we have entered into with Monterey now, they cover the northwest portion of Monterey and the Southwest end of Seaside--we should have a net reduction in fire insurance. Thus, with the flood insurance and fire insurance, Seaside is really making some seven-leauge boot steps forward."

Dudley Lapham, city manager, said the initial effort on the part of the council

An 'Encounter with Fantasy' programmed

Detlef Kraus, master pianist and a "master of sanity at the keyboard," will perform in concert at Monterey Peninsula College at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 15 in the MPC Theatre.

The program is titled "Encounter with Fantasy," and will feature Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, by J.S. Bach, Fantasy in C-minor K. 393, by Mozart, Fantasy in C-Major, by Haydn, Fantasy op. 77 and Sonata quasi una Fantasia in E flat op. 27 N. 1, by Beethoven.

Following an intermission, Kraus will return with Fantasiestudk op. 12, Nr. 9, by Schumann, Fantasie-Impromptu, by Chopin and numerous selections from Fantasies op. 116, by Brahms.

Kraus made his debut at the age of 16 with a performance of Bach's Well Tempered Clavier and is described as a disciple of Wilhelm Kempff, with whom he studied. Although his repertoire is extensive, Kraus is particulary devoted to the music of Beethoven and Brahms.

Kraus has presented a number of concerts in which he performed the entire collection of Beethoven Sonatas and the complete piano works of Brahms. He has completed concert tours throughout Europe, Canada, the United States, South America and the Near and Far East, appearing as soloist with major symphony orchestras.

General admission to the piano concert is $2.

Faces around the bay: Kathy Purifoy

Kathy is a 12-year-old seventh grader and she places mathematics and English at the top of the list as her favorite subjects. She also enjoys the challenge of learning French and is secretary of the French Club.

Kathy likes King Junior High and is particularly pleased with the rotating schedule. She would like to see more after-school activities planned. In her spare time she enjoys swimming, camping and bike riding. She enjoys sports.

Kathy has traveled to such places as Okinawa, Germany, Korea and Alabama. Her future plans include completing her education and becoming a model or a teacher.

Relaxing, meditating, learning

The City of Monterey Park and Recreation Department and the Self Realization Training (SRT) are co-sponsoring two new programs in "T'ai Chi Chuan" and "Relaxing in Action." Both classes will be held at the SRT Center located at 362 Pacific St. in Monterey and will be taught by Nancy Joeckel, co-founder of the SRT.

The "Relaxing in Action" class will emphasize skills for relaxing and staying relaxed, while being active with the body and mind. The focus will be on creating a supportive, alive climate for learning skills and for adapting them to each person's needs. Classes will be offered on Tuesday, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. or in the evening from 7:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., beginning with a free demonstration class. The class will then cost $5 per meeting.

The "T'ai Chi Chilan" class is a moving meditation class which relies on the body's natural movements.

Police clamp down hard on prostitution

Seaside police, in conjunction with law enforcement officers from Monterey and Pacific Grove, clamped down hard last week on prostitution in the first large, coordinated enforcement action by the three cities.

The action was brought about, as explained by Seaside Chief Ben Cooper, because of the recurring pattern in which an enforcement action in one of the adjoining cities merely displaces the criminal activity to another city.

Recognizing the fluid nature of the problem, the three cities decided to proceed with the joint enforcement action. The beginning of the action was timed to begin last Friday to coincide with pay day at Ford Ord, a time when, traditionally, prostitution increases, Cooper explained.

In the first weekend of the enforcement activity, three persons were arrested in Seaside. Arrested on a charge of soliciting for prostitution last Friday at the intersection of Broadway and Calaveras was Antonia Angeletta Graham, 27, of 1685 Judson.

Police arrested 26-year-old Helga Lillian Adams of 1159 Sheeler St. Saturday at the intersection of Broadway and Hillsdale for the same charge of soliciting for prostitution. And 23-year-old Deborah Louise Moon of 1460 Vallejo was arrested Sunday on a charge of soliciting for prostitution and possession of narcotics.

All except Moon were released on $1,000; Moon was released on bail of $1,250. Seaside police said they planned to continue the enforcement action throughout the week and the next weekend.

Before the crackdown started, Police Commander H. Amos said prostitutes from Fresno, San Jose, Oakland, Los Angeles and San Francisco were expected in this area, largely because of the Fort Ord pay day.

The action by police comes one week after The Pit, long recognized as a hub of victimless crimes, was torn down at Broadway and Noche Buena to mae room for a new Monterey County Social Services and Health Department building.

Police constructed this pattern of typical activities by prostitutes who converge on Seaside and the Monterey Peninsula:

Two young women check into a motel and register, asking for a back room without trying to raise any suspicions. Then the women hit the streets and find their "main market" in the young recruits from Fort Ord. Often, when the women are arrested, someone pays the standard $100 on $1,000 bail, and they may be free within a few hours to return to the street.

The average prostitute operating in this area can net as much as $600 to $1,000 in a weekend, but quite often all of this goes to the pimp, who may or may not give some back to the woman. Some of that cash is also used to procure drugs, both for personal consumption and for sale after "cutting."

Seaside police believe enforcement of prostitution laws has become very difficult because of several factors, including the necessity for three important factors in an arrest which will hold up in court. These three factors require that the suspected prostitute approach her client, name a price, and specify exactly what services will be rendered.

Those who have considerable experience on the street, as Commander Amos pointed out, soon learn not to allow themselves to be snared into making definite statements in any or all of those three areas, which makes the enforcement procedure more difficult.

Police employ the services of civilian volunteers and police reserves as decoys, or "pigeons," to help make arrests and to serve as witnesses later. But once a man has been used in this capacity several times, and his face becomes known, his utility is expended.

That prostitution is a health as well as a social problem can be well documented with some statistics.

Commander Amos said a check through the health services department at Fort Ord for venereal disease contacts gave a clear picture. 89 cases of VD were contracted through contacts at Fort Ord itself; 85 contacts were made in Monterey; and 179 contacts resulting in veneral disease were made in Seaside.

Whenever a woman is arrested for prostitution in Seaside, police serve them with papers directing them to get a VD check-up at the county health department, and police say compliance with this directive is good. Those women who are found to have VD are then treated by county health workers.

But police are not naive enough to believe that simple enforcement of prostitution laws will totally eradicate the problem. Their hope is that by systematic enforcement, things will get so tough for the prostitutes from outside the area that they will go elsewhere.

Chief Ben Cooper said he is optimistic that the transition of Fort Ord from a purely training base to the headquarters for the 7th Infantry Division will bring about a reduction in prostitution, since the men who will be coming to Fort Ord with that outfit are generally older, married, and less likely to become clients.

To properly assess the impact of the transfer of the 7th Infantry Division here, the city of Monterey is studying its activities in its present location at Fort Benning, Ga. Police suspect there is some likelihood that a certain number of prostitutes will, like camp followers, come with the 7th Infantry when it relocates here this year.

Esperanto instruction offered

Esperanto is such a regular and simplified language that it can be acquired in a fraction of the time needed to learn a national language.

English is reported to have 251 spellings for its 44 phonemes (sounds). Esperanto is phonetic; there is one sound for each letter and one letter for each sound. Russian is said to have 153 verb endings; German, 364; English, 654; and French some 2,265--compared to 12 verb endings for Esperanto, used nevertheless to express the finest shades of meaning.

Of some 2,800 languages in use in the world today, Esperanto is one of about 195 acitvely used in translations; one of about 135 with more than a million speakers; and one of 40 or so with extensive literatures.

Learn Esperanto and make use of the International Language in your work, in your travels and in all of your international relationships. A new course for beginners is being activated this month in the Pacific Grove Adult School at P.G. High School, 615 Sunset Drive in Room E-5. Classes meet on Mondays from 7 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. For further information, call 372-3253.

'I consider myself a delegate from all the people'

Mrs. Pearl Carey of Seaside is the first black woman from California to serve on the Democratic National Committee.

She was elected to that position at a party conference in Sacramento Jan. 26, and sees her victory as significant not only for women and minorities but also for the grass roots, low-spending candidate.

Mrs. Carey contended with 10 other women for one of the three new spots on the committee recently added by party leaders to increase minority representation. She spent only $120 on her campaign, whereas some other women, successful and unsuccessful, spent as much as $10,000.

Mrs. Carey attributes her election on the fourth, rather than the first ballot, to the fact "people are not really all out yet for affirmative action.

"I was elected as a grass roots woman over some very wealthy women," she commented.

Although the Democrats did include an affirmative action in their party platform a few years ago (which Mrs. Carey believes saved the party from ruination), in many ways the "old politics" still prevails, she said.

There were no big endorsements from name senators, congressmen, or governors, just those of community and ethnic organizations, as well as the man-on-the-street who believed she would be a good representative. Some of Mrs. Carey's opponents in the balloting for the prestigious position included Shirley Goldinger, Pat Nesbitt, and Nancy Green, actor Lorne Greene's wife.

The reward of being on this decision-making body of the Democratic National Party is not without its responsibilities, too. As a member, Mrs. Carey must make as many as three trips a year to Washington, D.C. to attend to party business, including all executive functions of the Democratic party.

Since members of the national committee are not reimbursed for their travel expenses, and because Mrs. Carey is not a Rockefeller, she plans to seek donations from the community to help defray air fares which might amount to $1,500 a year.

"I consider myself a delegate from all the people, not just minorities," she asserted. "But my heart especially goes out to them."

Mrs. Carey said she enjoyed the strong support of many white, male Democrats at the party conference in Sacramento, all of them in the over-50 age category--the same group of people once considered for exclusion from national committee membership.

"With my election, California will go on record as really trying to do the things we profess we'll do," she said. "I was very surprised. I had worked for this, because I feel it is my right, but I wasn't so sure I would get it."

Political involvement is nothing new to Mrs. Carey, as Seaside's old-timers may remember.

Her career on the city council of 14 months ended in 1971 in a recall movement against those Mrs. Carey branded (herself included) as "too outspoken."

"My father was a real politician," she recalled. "He was an alderman in a little town in Oklahoma, and I used to go to all the meetings with him when I was a little girl."

Then, after her marriage, she was also active in political affairs in Harlem before becoming similarly engaged in California when she and her husband moved here in 1952. She worked for former State Sen. Fred Farr and served former Gov. Pat Brown as minority coordinator for Monterey County.

She achieved some notoriety when she was threatened with dismissal from her job with the State Department of Human Resources Development for political activity--specifically, her attendance at the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

She was notified that she was in violation of the Hatch Act (which prohibits federal employes from taking an active role in politics) since she administered a federally-funded training program for minorities.

But Mrs. Carey protested that she was paid through the State of California, and claimed the Hatch Act was unfair. With the assistance of the American Civil Liberties Union, she fought the ruling, but lost the case and her job last March. She is employed now with the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District as coordinator of a special program to assist disadvantaged students.

Through the years of gradual social progress that Mrs. Carey has witnessed, she has learned that "it will take a lot to change the old politics.

"I think we can make affirmative action work. I preferred quotas at first, simply because you can see quotas and you can see when they are monitored what's happening. This is so everybody will have a chance to participate."

Although Mrs. Carey believes the Democratic party is much more unified than it was in 1972 or in 1968, she sees no strong contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

"I have no idea who could be the strong candidate in 1976," she commented. "The Democrats feel they could win the election, but they know that will have to continue to work. They're more unified than before, too.

"McGovern did a lot for the party, but I don't think he will run again. We had a hard time writing our own affirmative action plan, but I think it's the only thing that saved the party.

"I believe that if women receive their rights, then the race problems will improve. America is afraid to give women equal justice because it's afraid it will upset everything. All women want is equal pay for equal work, equal attention with men, and the right to lead their own lives."

MRS. PEARL CAREY

Mrs. Carey believes the involvement of women and minorities in politics is a very constructive force for change.

"People will have to get interested if they're going to be able to do anything," she said.

Special exhibition displayed

The phrase "School of Paris" has many romantic connotations. The imagination pictures garrets, cafes, the Eiffel Tower--a glorious free and shining place where one could paint amid the triumphs of the past, and the new ideas of the present.

The Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies will have this Northwood collection, "School of Paris," on exhibition through this week, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at 456 Van Buren.

The collection is representative of younger artists, living in and around Paris since World War II. They are esentially expressionists; artists of this world, living in it, experiencing it.

For many years, friends and patrons of Northwood Institute have donated paintings, drawings, graphics and sculpture--even entire collections, to the Institute. These collections are now on a national tour, rotating from campus to campus.

The public is invited, and admission is free. For more information, please call the Office of Community Relations, 373-5119.

Silk screen classes start

Silk screening classes for beginning and advanced students will be offered by Monterey Peninsula College Community Services, and preregistration is now in progress.

Heinz Hubler, community services officer, said classes will be held for 10 weeks beginning Saturday, Feb. 15, with the beginning classes in the mornings and the advanced classes in the afternoons. The registration fee is $14 for each class and students should expect to spend about $20 on supplies and materials.

The courses will cover screen making, silk stretching, and preparation for printing, including such techniques, as tushe and glue, stencil, lacquer cutting, glue block-outs and color overlays, fabric silkscreening and printing.

For more information call MPC Community Services at 373-5522.

Coed sports continue

Tuesday evening co-recreational sports programs will continue for the spring semester at Monterey Peninsula College to provide the opportunity for peninsula residents to participate in supervised sports activities.

Randy Kermode, recreation instructor, said "Co-Rec Night" will take place each Tuesday from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the MPC gymnasium. Activities will include basketball, volleyball, badminton, weight lifting, folk dancing, and swimming.

Admission to the program is 25 cents for non-student body cardholders and free to members of the Associated Students of MPC.

Enlisted in the Navy

MONTEREY Ca.---Glenn Castellow, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim R. Larson of 305 Kalborn Road, Fort Ord, California, was enlisted in the Navy's "CACHE" Program during ceremonies held in the Navy Recruiting Office on January 23, 1975.

Glenn is presently attending Seaside High School and upon his graduation in June, he will report to San Diego, California, for nine weeks of recruit training before attending the Navy's Communication Operator School.

Gourmet instruction offered

C.J. Van Peski, a chef for Neil De Vaughn's restaurant on Cannery Row, will be the next guest chef in Monterey Peninsula College's continuing weekend Gourmet series at 4 p.m. Saturday Feb. 15 in Lecture Forum 101.

Van Peski will guide participants through the fine points of preparing cheese souffle, the chef's specialty. Van Peski has worked at a number of restaurants in Europe including the Hotel Handorff in Holland, the Hotel Bruxlle in Brussels, the Grand Hotel in the Hague and the Hotel Le Europe in Amsterdam.

Van Peski was a chef for nine years at the Del Monte Lodge and opened the Outrigger restaurant as the head chef. For the last 15 years he has been at Neil De Vaughn's. In 1960 he studied current European food preparation techniques at the Hotel Goldern in Lucern, Switzerland.

Admission to the workshop is free and for more information, contact Roger Fremier at 649-1150, ext. 282.

Classic films to be shown

Cinema Classics "Of Human Bondage" and "Jezebel" are the first films in Monterey Peninsula College's Spring Film Gallery and will be screened at 8 p.m. Friday, February 14 in the MPC Theatre.

The 1934 production "Of Human Bondage" stars Leslie Howard and Bette Davis and brings Somerset Maugham's novel to life. Howard plays a sensitive writer who is infected with a passion for a lower-class girl, played by Davis with the perfect combination of egotism and animal sexuality.

"Jezebel," released in 1938, won Bette Davis her second Academy Award in this drama of a stubborn, vain, spoiled Southern belle who loses her fiance but later proves her great love for him when he becomes the victim of yellow fever. Henry Fonda co-stars and Fay Bainter was awarded an Oscar for Best Supporting Actress in this film, directed by William Wyler.

Admission to the films is $1 general and 50 cents for children under 12, and Associated Students of MPC card holders, and free to Golden Card holders.

Consumer warning issued

The Monterey County Department of Weights, Measures and Consumer Affairs has received many inquiries about persons selling frozen fish door-to-door.

The calls indicate that the fish, which is probably Whiting, is being represented as Trout, Salmon or Catfish.

Any packaged product is required to be labeled with the identity of the packer, the name of the product (in this case, the type of fish), and the accurate net weight.

School lunch waste an object of great concern

If school children were to take home their uneaten portions of sack or school lunches, parents would be appaled, states Peggy Briggs, Director of Food Services for the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District. Several factors influence the amount and kind of food consumed, she feels. One large factor is time; children rush to play with friends, and tend to eat the quickest and easiest item. Also, they are sometimes rushed by lunchroom personnel who need to clean up and move on to their other activities. The cafeteria atmosphere is important, also. Children generally eat better with adult companions as examples, rather than their peer groups. Fast growing teenagers with daily 3,000 calorie requirements, also find it difficult to eat 1000 of these calories at one sitting. Many students tend to satisfy only their immediate hunger, and consume the additional necessary calories after school. Weight conscious teenagers try to consume fewer calories, sometimes only to make up the difference in high calorie snacks.

Monterey Peninsula Unified School District school lunches are planned to contain one-third the recommended daily calorie allowance, and one-half of the daily protein allowance for each age group. Each meal is a balanced combination of proteins, carbohydrates and fats. Monterey and Seaside High Schools now have district managed snack shops, where students may purchase sandwiches and salads. The income from coke and candy machines has dropped $30 per day since the inauguration of the shop at Monterey High School.

Mrs. Briggs urges all parents to evaluate quality and quantity of their children's lunches, to reinforce good nutrition and eating habits, and to pack only the necessary amount in order to avoid wasting the "overage."

Monterey County vineyards post an excellent year

The year 1974 was not only an excellent vintage year in Monterey County, but also an excellent year of sales as well, with the established, major wine brands of the county recording substantial gains.

Daniel Mirassou, president of the Monterey Winegrowers Council, said sales in 1974 were ahead of the previous year 25 per cent for San Martin, 34 per cent for Paul Masson, 23 per cent for Mirassou and 16 per cent for Wente Brothers.

Gold Seal, a New York State brand with associations in the country and Chalone, a small-long-established winery in the country, also posted sales gains.

"There is an entirely positive attitude among vineyard owners that is pioneer in spirit," said Mirassou. "It creates an optimismfor both the quality of Monterey County wines and for the future of these wines in the marketplace."

More than 7,000 acres were in full production in 1974. Within the next two years, an additional 30,000 acres will come into full bearing.

"We believe this wine production will find a marketplace for three reasons," Mirassou said. "First, because all of this acreage is in fine varietal types in which there is not overproduction. Second, because most of this acreage is associated with experienced wine-marketing organizations. Third, the wine industry in Montreal County is young, aggressive and well-financed."

An example is the 9,600 acres associated with the Monterey Vineyard. A major, up-to-date winery is being built to handle this crush in Gonzales. Selected wines from this acreage will be marketed under The Monterey Vineyard label by The Monterey Bay Company, a joint venture between the winery and Foremost-McKesson.

In 1974, the established brands also participated in growth and expansion. Mirassou doubled its capacity; Paul Masson built new storage and dessert wine facilities and San Martin expanded and modernized its winery facility to handle inflow of Monterey County varietals. New, smaller wineries like Durney and Greenfield will be coming into the market soon.

In addition to the established and new wine brands, membership in the Monterey Winegrowers Council includes the following viticultural organizations: Arroyo Seco Vineyards,

Chinese artist exhibits in city hall

In honor of the Chinese New Year (Year of the Hare), the Seaside Art Commission is presenting a one-man show of Chinese paintings by Prof. I Chen Wu of San Jose during the month of February.

Some 20 works of Chinese paintings and calligraphy will be on view in the City Hall Gallery from Feb. 3 through Feb. 28, during office hours, Monday to Friday.

Born in the Hupeh province of China, Wu began sketching at an early age; he was apprentice to an artist-uncle when he was eight years old. Civil strife forced him to flee to Taiwan, where he continued his art studies and training. He graduated from the National Chung Hsing University in Formosa.

He nows holds a M.A. degree from San Jose State University, where he teaches Chinese painting and calligraphy. He has taught Chinese art at the Universities of California, Kansas, and San Francisco.

Since 1966, Wu has been lecturing, demonstrating and exhibiting, besides conducting private classes in the United States and Canada. He was a featured art demonstrator at the Chinese Pavilion at EXPO in Montreal and at the Hemis-Fair in San Antonio, Tex. Television documentaries on his work have been shown on national networks in USA and Canada.

Wu believes poetry, calligraphy, and painting are inseparable, and that an artist should strive to be a scholar first, then a poet, a calligrapher, and finally, a painter. He feels that his style is a belnding of the heritage of the past with the perspective of the present.

He is a member of the Art Society of China, the Chinese Calligraphers' Association, and the Confucius-Mencius Society. He has exhibited in the Orient and in the West, winning many prizes, including in the Mid-America art exhibitions. He now resides at 1683 Christipher St., San Jose, with his family.

Urban Fellows Sought

National Urban Fellows (NUF), an organization in its seventh year of recruiting and training young people for careers as urban administrators, is seeking applicants in the Bay Area.

Frank Lague, NUF director in New Haven, Conn., announced that applications will be taken up to March 1 for the next fellowship year which will begin in July and continue to August, 1976.

The program is supported by grants from the Lilly Endowment, the Ford Foundation, Aetna Life and Casualty Co. and payments from governmental agencies to which fellows are assigned.

Those chosen are assigned to cities throughout the country where they serve as special assistants to top-level administrators, including mayors and city managers.

During the first six years of the program, fellowships awere awarded to 153 men and women, principally blacks, Mexican Americans and Puerto Ricans.

The core of the program is a nine month, full-time assignment as special assistant to a mayor, city manager or other urban administrator. An intensive course in public management at Yale University starts the program. After the nine-month internship the fellows attend a 10-week, residential semester at Occidental College in Los Angeles, completing requirements for a master of arts degree in urban studies.

Applicants must be United States citizens between the ages of 24 and 39 and have a bachelor's degree, or in exceptional circumstances, equivalent experience. They must have been employed full-time for at least two years, preferably in an administrative capacity, and must have demonstrated exceptional ability, leadership potential and commitment to the solution of urban problems.

WeatherProof Your Boots

February can be a great time for buying a handsome pair of boots on sale. But whether your boots are brand new or old, they need help to survive the rest of the winter. Here are some tips from GLAMOUR Magazine:

Preventive care

New leather boots should be treated with one of the many good waterproofing sprays on the market. If your old ones are not too far gone, waterproofing can give them added life. Follow the directions on the product you buy to the letter. Sloppy application can mean the spray won't be effective. Some of these products can also be used on suede boots, but never put any product on suede boots or shoes unless the directions specifically state the product is safe for suede.

Saddle soap new leather riding or sturdy outdoor boots to nourish and protect the leather. The same goes for your old faithfuls. Many manufacturers of leather boots recommend a weekly saddle soaping to keep them in first-rate shape. However, for dressier kidskin boots, use a protective neutral cream.

WOODSY OWL HOOTS:
More bicycles and shoe leather... Less smog.

A college 'coming out' party scheduled

Increasing student interest in opportunities available as a volunteer is the reason for a "Coming Out" party sponsored by Monterey Peninsula College's Volunteer Bureau Friday and Saturday, Feb. 13-14, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the MPC College Center.

Kathy McKay, coordinator for the bureau, said refreshments will be available and interested persons are invited to talk and become acquainted with the activities of the bureau.

McKay said programs available for volunteers include tutoring, "big buddy" programs, friends to the aging, legal aid, assistance to the physically and mentally handicapped as well as clerical and secretarial work.

McKay described the benefits to volunteers an an opportunity for actual work experience before entering the job market, personal growth and enrichment and eligiblity for scholarships.

She said students may earn general and vocational credit for volunteer work. Vocational credit is given for work related to the student's field of study and general credit or unrelated credit for unrelated work. The number of units given varies with the number of hours a student volunteer works.

For more information on MPC's Volunteer Bureau, contact McKay at 649-1150, ext. 303.

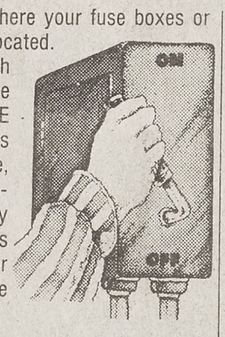
Put these tips and some spare fuses near your fuse box.

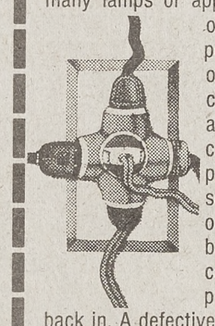
With a flashlight, they may help should your lights go out.

Be Prepared. Know where your fuse boxes or circuit breakers are located. Locate the main switch box—usually near the spot where the PG&E electric service wires connect to your house, or near your PG&E electric meter. Locate any additional box or boxes—usually in a closet or utility room. Keep spare fuses handy.

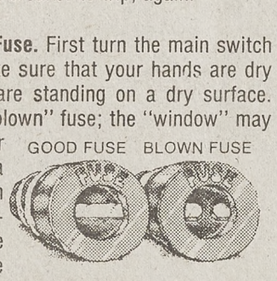


Check the Neighbors. If your lights should go out, check to see if other homes in your neighborhood have lights. If the power is off in your home only, you may have a blown fuse or tripped circuit breaker.

Determine the Cause. Blown fuses or tripped circuit breakers are often caused by having too many lamps or appliances connected to one outlet or circuit. Another possibility is a defective cord on a lamp or appliance. To check, unplug all lamps or appliances on the affected circuit, looking for defective plugs or cords while doing so. Replace the blown fuse or re-set the tripped circuit breaker, following the procedures given below. Then plug each lamp or appliance back in. A defective one will cause the fuse to blow, or circuit breaker to trip, again.



To Replace a Fuse. First turn the main switch to "OFF." Make sure that your hands are dry and that you are standing on a dry surface. Look for the "blown" fuse; the "window" may be blackened, or there may be a visible gap in the fuse element. Replace the blown fuse with one of the proper amperage rating, usually one of not more than 15-20 amps. Never use a penny or other metal object to "bridge" the blown fuse, as this could cause a house fire. Turn the main switch to "ON." If only part of the lights in the house come on, this may indicate that a fuse in a branch fuse box has also blown. Check these fuses in the same way you checked the fuses at the main switch.



Cartridge Fuses. Be sure the main switch is "OFF" while you are changing cartridge fuses. You won't be able to visually tell exactly which cartridge fuse is blown. In this case, test by safely replacing each fuse with a new one until you find the blown fuse.

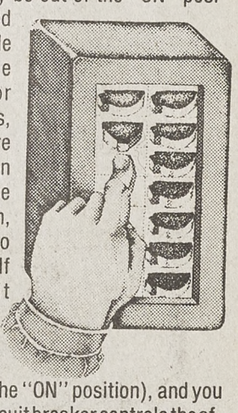
To Reset a Circuit Breaker. A tripped circuit breaker will probably be out of the "ON" position. Move the affected circuit breaker handle all the way to the "OFF" position (for some circuit breakers, a moderate pressure in the "OFF" direction is necessary to cause them to reset). Then, move the handle to the "ON" position. If the affected circuit breaker does not indicate that it has tripped (its handle has not moved from the "ON" position), and you do not know which circuit breaker controls the affected circuit, try resetting all circuit breakers.



Some Added Safety Tips. Never plug in electrical appliances near bathtubs or basins. Never wash coffee pots or frying pans while they are still plugged in. Make sure that electric tools are properly grounded (with a 3-prong plug), or are of the U.L. approved "double-insulated" type. When you unplug an appliance, pull the plug—not the cord.

Still in the Dark? If you've followed all of these procedures and you're still in the dark, don't hesitate to call PG&E. We'll be happy to help.

Crime abatement course offered in Seaside

"Community Crime Abatement," a course offered by Monterey Peninsula College in conjunction with the Seaside Crime Abatement Committee, began last week but is still open to enrollees.

The Monterey Peninsula Unified School District is also cooperating with the program by making it possible to obtain high school credit available to those within the MPUSD who wish to participate and desire such credit. The MPC offers college credit to those who earn it by meeting the requirements set for earning such credit.

The class is open to all. It is uniquely structured so that the student who is seeking a professional career in law enforcement (police science), social science or general education can receive credit, and benefit. The parent who wants to make his community safer and more pleasant for his children to live, learn and grow can gain knowledge, with or without credit.

The accent will be on crime prevention, from a community or individual citizen perspective.

The Community Crime Abatement Committee will hold its regular meeting the same day, in city hall.

We also invite members of nonprofit organizations to participate in the program.

For more information, call Warren "Tor" Spindler or Stephen E. Ross, MPC Instructors for this class.

Spindler may be contacted by calling 649-1150, Ext. 217; Ross may be contacted by calling 899-3774 or 394-4854. Information may also be obtained at MPC Registration Desk.

Pamela Gonzales is Betty Crocker leader

Pamela Gonzalez has been named Seaside High School 1974-75 Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow. Pamela won the honor by competing with other seniors in the written knowledge and attitude examination on Dec. 3.

She is now eligible for state and national honors and will receive a specially designed award from General Mills, Inc., sponsor of the annual educational scholarship program.

State Family Leaders of Tomorrow receive a $1,500 college scholarship while state second-place winners receive a grant of $500. The state winner also earns for his or her school, a 20-volume reference work, "The Annals of America," from Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corp.

In the spring, state winners and their faculty advisors will be the guests of General Mills on an expense-paid educational tour which will include Washington, D.C., and Williamsburg, Va. A special event of the tour is the announcement of the All-American Family Leader of Tomorrow, whose scholarship will be increased to $5,000.

Second, third and fourth place winners will receive scholarship increases to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively. A $1,000 Nutrition Scholarship is also available again this year from General Mills.

Students and staff of the MPUSD will observe two holidays in February. The first, Lincoln's Birthday falls on Wednesday, February 12; Washington's Birthday will be celebrated on Monday, February 17.

"We fired in all the necessary papers to the federal government in accordance to their regulations and as a result of this we have been notified that we compiled with all the regulations on flood insurance.

"It means that if individual property owners care to, they now can take advantage of the flood insurance which, as I understand it, could also apply and cover such things as mud slides and anything that is connected to a gully wash or rain inducted problems."

clude: Carpenters Union Locals 925 and 1323, Plasterers and Cement Masons Local 337, Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 503, Roofers Local 50, and Sheet Metal Workers Local 309.

In the case of Seaside, the proportion of minority groups that is applicable is 30 per cent Black, 10 per cent Mexican-American, and 6 per cent Filipino.

Compliance with the federal regulations in the case of Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 62 was difficult because of the fact many operate as family business, passing their license on from father to son, explained Tom Nash, a member of the affirmative action board of directors form Seaside.

Women are now being brought into the construction trades in Monterey County under the affirmative action program in a manner similiar of other minorities, but one of the biggest stumbling blocks to implementation of the hometown plan has been the examinations given to prospective apprentices, Nash said.

These generally consit of both written and oral exams, and the nature of the oral exams is an unknown quantity which conceivvably could be used to discriminate in hiring practices, Nash alleged.

The imposition of Part II of the bid conditions is one of three possible courses of action open to the OFCC when confronted with a trade union not meeting federal requirements. The other two are:

--Barring the noncomplying trade union from participation in any federally-funded or federally-assisted construction projects.

--Enforcement action by the federal government against the noncomplying trade union for failing to meet its agreed-upon hiring quotas.
